Location

The property is located to the east of Douglas Street, at its junction with Sauchiehall Street and within Glasgow City Centre. Douglas Street one of the main streets which links Argyle Street and Sauchiehall Street and direct connections to the M8 motorway are conveniently located a short distance to the west. Charing Cross railway station is also located within a few minutes walk, and Glasgow's Central and Queen Street stations are both a short distance away. Regular bus services pass close to the property on many of the surrounding streets.

The property is also convenient for restaurants, shops and banking facilities, all of which are immediately adjacent.

Description

The office suite is formed on the 2nd floor of Rothesay House, which comprises a stone building, 3 storeys and attic in height, having a mansard slated roof, with timber framed, single glazed windows. The office occupies a prominent corner position, with good natural daylight to the majority of the office areas.

Access to the suite is via an attractive entrance hallway which leads to a lift and stairwell serving the upper floors.

The office suite is finished to a modern standard, and has been subdivided to form cellular accommodation which would be ideal for a professional practice or similar occupier. The office space benefits from the following features:

- Dedicated toilet accommodation
- Central heating system with radiators
- Perimeter power and data points enhanced with floor boxes
- Private offices, meeting rooms and board room framed.
- Refurbished common areas

Areas

The office extends to a net internal area of 243.72 sq m (2,623 sq ft) or thereby. This excludes the toilet accommodation within the suite.
